DURING last January there was shown at The Art Gallery of Toronto, a collection of pictures acquired by citizens of Toronto during the previous ten years. In the preliminary arrangement a room was tentatively reserved for contemporary American paintings. When the Exhibition was assembled, it was found that only two such pictures were available. As a result this important school was practically unrepresented.

The Exhibition Committee felt that it was their duty to give Toronto an opportunity to see and appreciate the work being done in the United States. As all the pictures have to be borrowed from a comparatively restricted field, it was decided to limit this exhibition to contemporary paintings. At another time the Committee hope to arrange a retrospective collection, which will include the works of Innis, Winslow Homer, A. P. Ryder, Alden Weir, Whistler, Blaiklock, as well as the earlier schools of Copley and Stuart.

In choosing the pictures shown here, the Committee has endeavored to have every school represented by first-rate examples. Through the kindness of Mr. Harshe, Assistant Director of The Art Institute of Chicago, we were enabled to make a selection of about fifty-two paintings out of some three hundred shown at their annual exhibition, in competition for the Logan prizes. We are indebted to Miss Lucy Taggart, of New York, for securing other important works not shown in Chicago.

In order to have the modernists adequately represented, we were fortunate in securing the co-operation of Mr. Walter Pach, Treasurer of the Society of Independent Artists. About twenty pictures of the ultra-modern movements in painting selected by him and shown together in one of the rooms, may be taken as thoroughly representing the American adherents of Cezanne, Van Gough and Gauguin.
